Supreme Court.
 Dussol vs. the B.C. & V.I. Spar and Lum-ber Co. (Limited)

THE DECISION.
 In form this is an action of Tort, but in fact it is an action founded on a contract, by which the owners of the steam-tug Isabel bound themselves to the owners of the ship Rosalia to tow the latter vessel from Victoria to Burrard Inlet and back again for $400. The contract is silent as to taking any other vessel in tow. The declaration charges that the defendants improperly took another ship in tow and improperly cast off the Rosalia and deserted her, whereby she was lost. The jury have found a special verdict. Upon a full consideration of this case in all its bearings I am of opinion that the answers of the jury to the questions put to them, amount, in point of law, to a verdict for the defend-ants. The jury have found that the defend-ants failed in their contract to bring the Rosalia from Burrard Inlet to Victoria. That if the Isabel had taken the Rosalia alone in tow she would have been able to have completed her contract and brought the Rosalia on to Victoria in safety. That the taking another vessel [the Fanny] in tow decreased the power of the Isabel to act in favor of the Rosalia, and that at the time she was cast off the Isabel was unable to tow both vessels. That after the Rosalia was cast off the Isabel did all in her power to assist the Rosalia to a berth of safety. I think the defendants were bound to bring reason-able skill and power to the performance of the contract and that the failure to do so is legal negligence. The power they did pos-ess was used by them in favor of the Fanny to the detriment of the Rosalia and for the benefit of the owners of the Isabel, and but for this she would have been able to complete her contract. It seems to me that so far the finding of the jury, if it stood alone, would amount to legal negligence on the part of the defendants and that if the loss of the vessels had been the consequence, that they would have been liable. But there is a clear rule of law that although the defendant has been guilty of negligence yet if the plaintiff could, by the use of ordinary care and skill, have avoided the result, he is not entitled to recover [see Davis and Mann, 12 L. T. N. S. Ex. 10]. Now, although the jury have found that after the Rosalia was cast off the cap-tain did do his best according to the skill and judgment he possessed and the means within his power to save his ship, yet, that he did not use, and indeed did not possess, seamanlike skill, and that had he possessed and used such skill the Rosalia would not have been lost, in my opinion, this amounts to contributory negligence on the part of the plaintiff, depriving him of the right to recover in respect even of the admitted negligence of the defendants. The employment of a steam vessel for the purpose of towing is a contract which implies the exercise of diligence, care and reasonable skill in the fulfillment of their engagement by the parties to it on both sides and their agents and servants; the master and crew of the tug and the master and crew of the ship in tow [MacLachlin & Co. 263]. The jury have found that the master of the Rosalia neither possessed nor used such skill, and that if he had the Rosalia would not have been lost. But there is another and distinct ground on which it appears to me that this action must fail. The damage is too remote. To entitle the plaintiff to recover the damage must not only be the consequence, but the direct consequence of the defendant's negli-gence. See Wilson vs. the Newport Dock Company, 14 W. Rep. Ex. 177. Indeed see the U. M. Assurance Co. 32 L. J. C. P. 170]. But the jury have found that the Rosalia was ashore not in consequence of the acts of the Isabel or any of them, but from want of sea-manlike skill on the part of the captain. For these reasons I think the verdict which was nominally entered for the plaintiffs must be set aside and the verdict entered for the de-fendants and the rule made absolute accord-ingly.

COMOX.—The sleep Alarm arrived yester-day morning from Comox. John Hart, who was reported killed by natives, came in her. He looks as if being killed agrees with his constitution. The crops of Comox District are generally a failure; what the late frosts left the drought finished. The hay crop, how-ever, is immense and stock has flourished beyond precedent.

THE DELAWARE.—This bark, commanded by Capt. Hornsby, arrived yesterday from Burrard Inlet; she has a cargo of lumber on board from Moody's Mills, and is bound for San Francisco. The appearance of the bark is trim and the hull none the worse for the trial of strength with the rocks at Fisguard light in December last.

BIG CATCH.—Dawson & Co., at Cortes Is-land, have secured five whales, averaging 80 barrels to a fish, a total of 13,000 gallons, worth in New York City, this very day, $120 per gallon in greenbacks, or 87 cents in gold. The company killed three other whales and then lost them, two have since been picked up by outside parties.

AMUSING COURT SCENE.—John Balden, a respectable-looking colored man, was charged yesterday with beating his wife upon the head with a stick, and trying to choke her. Mr. Bishop appeared for the defence, and stated to the Court that the title-deeds to certain property near St. John's Church had been taken possession of by the prosecutrix who, the prisoner claims, is not his wife. The witness said she was married to Bal-den thirteen or fourteen years ago, in Texas; witness and her husband were slaves. Wit-ness took her owner's name, which was White, and prisoner that of his owner, which was Balden. There were lots of witnesses present at the marriage ceremony. Prisoner came and pulled down witness' fence three times.

Mr. Bishop commenced to address the Court—
 Witness—Lawyer, will you let me speak?
 Mr. Bishop—Certainly, ma'am.
 Witness—He came to my house—
 Mr. Bishop—And attempted to come in.
 Witness—Attempted! he did come in and put his hands on his hips and said, "this is my property." What woman could stand that, I'd like to know? what woman could stand it? (a laugh.)

Mr. Bishop—Didn't you say "I'm master here?"
 Witness—Yes, I did. He struck me five or six times with his stick on the head, and tried to burst it in.
 Mr. Bishop—Didn't you strike him?
 Witness—Of course, I did.
 Mr. Bishop—Didn't you take him by the throat?
 Witness—No, sir. No, sir.

Mr. Bishop—Then you laid down like a peaceable lamb?
 Witness—Ma lay down like a piece of amb? No, sir, I did not, and there was no man there but one. (great laughter.) He raised the stick first and I struck him first.
 Mr. Bishop—Didn't you say that you hit him first?
 Witness—I didn't say no such a thing. I didn't tell him I was mistress there.
 Mr. Bishop—Are not the title deeds in his name?

Witness—Yes, they are. How come I by them?
 Mr. Bishop—I don't know; suppose you tell us.
 Witness—Well, I worked hard for that property—harder than he did, and if you think I'm a going to let him turn me out without a cent you're very much mistaken;—there, now!

To the Court—We hain't lived together for three years. He deserted me.
 Mr. Bishop—The prisoner says he was lying on the ground and a white man struck him several times.
 Witness—Bishop, I'm very sorry to say that ain't true.

Two witnesses [white] were called to prove the violence of Balden, but neither saw the commencement of the fray.
 The prisoner made a statement to the ef-fect that he was called over to the house by the prosecutrix, and when he crossed the street she struck him and threw "biling" water over him. "Then," said he, "I went away."

Mr. Pemberton—And why didn't you re-main away?
 Prisoner—I did remain away. I hain't been back since. [Roars of laughter.]

Balden was ordered to find security to keep the peace for six months, and was locked up in default.

LIFE ASSURANCE.—It increases one's credit and adds to his business reputation. Reputa-tion is money; and it is a mark of fore-sight, large-mindedness and economy to as-sure. A merchant once advertised for a clerk. Out of two hundred applicants for the place, he was influenced in favor of a particular one by the young man's statements that he had kept a life policy in force for five years. The great New York Mutual, with $32,000,000 capital, offers many inducements in the way of Life Assurance at remarkably low rates, securing at once to its patrons all the advantages of Life Assurance, a Savings Bank and a safe investment. It numbers among its policy holders the ablest financiers and shrewdest business men of the country. The agents for the Mutual in these Colonies is Colonel Dudley Evans of Wells Fargo & Co.

FROM PUGET SOUND.—The steamer Wilson G. Hunt reached her wharf at 9 last even-ing, bringing a large number of passengers. The steamers Wright and Telfair passed up the Sound yesterday. The former went on to Seattle, and the latter to Port Gamble. Both are due here to-day. Capt. Myrick, Purser of the Hunt, has placed us under ob-ligations for the usual favors. Mr. Eli Marks arrived on the Hunt.

LAKE DISTRICT.—Mrs Bailey, wife of the settler whose farm buildings were destroyed by fire a few days ago, called yesterday to say that the configuration was undoubtedly the work of an incendiary. About one year ago a barn belonging to this couple was burned, and a man was arrested and convicted of the crime and sentenced to a term of imprison-ment. He was pardoned before the expira-tion of the term and is now at large. The police are engaged in working the case up.

THE BARCLAY SOUND MURDERS.—H. M. S. Sparrowhawk sailed yesterday afternoon at twenty minutes past 2 o'clock for Barclay Sound, having on board the two Indians sen-tenced to death for the John Bright mas-sacre, High Sheriff Elliott, and a detachment of marines from H. M. S. Satellite. The sea-fall which has been service for many years at Victoria and Nanaimo, was taken on board, together with a number of workmen to put it together.

VICTORIA HOUSE.—Just received by Express the New and Elegant Lace Scarfs, (Garde Francaise, Chevreuse and Inoroyable), Real Lace Shawls, Irish Poplins, Glace Silks, Satins, Ribbons, Trimmings, Buttons, Flowers, Trimmed Sets, Lace Falls, Silk Serges, New Dress Materials, and a variety of Fancy Goods; also a complete assortment of Ladies' Skirts and underclothing.

WHO HAS AUTHORITY?—Who has autho-rity to stop the cutting down of trees at Og-den Point and Medina's Grove? Cartload after cartload of wood has been taken away by Chinamen and others, and the Point will soon be denuded of timber. If the land be public property (as is claimed) it should be protected from invasion and injury.

The Horticultural and Agricultural Meet-ing called for yesterday did not take place in consequence of the slim attendance. The adjourned meeting will be held to-morrow, at 11 a.m., when it is hoped all who feel an interest in the advancement of one of our colonial mainstays will attend.

AUCTION SALE.—Mr Franklin will hold a sale of the balance of stock of L and J Bos-cowitz, Yates street, commencing at 11 o'clock this morning.

PANTHER SHOT.—A large panther was shot at Metchesin on Saturday. The carcass was brought to this city yesterday by the slayer, and a reward of $7 paid him by Gov-ernment.

THE BITTER BITTEN.—An Indian on Fri-day, bit a large piece of flesh from the arm of another aborigine. For the offense he was ordered to pay a fine of $15 into the Colonial exchequer.

BRIDGES.—Timber, crops and buildings are disappearing from the path of the fire fiend in Washington Territory. The fires are everywhere and the damage wrought is incalculable.

GVERNOR MUGRAVE COMING.—The tele-graph announces that Governor Musgrave left Halifax, Nova Scotia, on the 19th inst. for Victoria. He is eleven days on his jour-ne, and ought to be here very soon.

The steamship Pacific is advertised to sail from Portland for San Francisco via Victoria on or about the 31st inst.

A PRINCESS IN A BEER SALOON.—Some years since, the daughter of Prince Henry, in Reuss-Greiz, a small German principality of the middle of Germany, became deeply at-tached to a young subaltern, who command-ed the annual contingent furnished the army of the King of Prussia. Of course all thought of marrying him with the consent of the Prince was out of the question; but it was arranged that the young Lieutenant should resign his position in the army, and together they would escape to the United States. Embarking at Antwerp, they came to New York, and were married there. But being young and without experience in the ways of the world, their little means were soon exhausted, and they found themselves in a strange land, friendless and in poverty. They were afraid to communicate with any of their countrymen, lest the circumstances of their flight should become known and themselves arrested. Unacquainted with our laws, and supposing that the authority of their petty prince was as potent here as among the grain fields of their native land, they sought obscurity, and shrank from their names and station being blazoned abroad. At last, pushed to the extreme of poverty, the husband, who was an excellent musi-cian, obtained a situation in the orchestra at Niblo's Garden, but learning that inquiries had been made by the Prus-sian Consul of their presence in the city, he threw up his engagement and came South, and in the summer of 1867 fell a victim to the yellow fever. His wife, now left alone, and reduced to the extreme verge of poverty, applied for and obtained a situation in a beer saloon in this city, where she now is. It is a strange episode in real life, but a true one and exhibits, as no moralist could describe, the vicissitudes of fortune. She is now per-haps twenty-five years of age, small in sta-ture, with an elegant symmetrical figure, and decidedly pretty face shaded with light brown curls, and her manners and conversation evince one accustomed to good society. She displays a good deal of reluctance in talk-ing to strangers, but once interested in con-versation, she becomes animated and engaging. She seems to feel her questionable position very sensibly, and the slightest allusion to what she was and is now is sufficient to pro-voke her to tears.—New Orleans Picayune.

T. C. PETERS writes to the Hearth and Home that the long-winded sheep can only be perfected where herbage in summer is plenty and of easy access, and plenty of for-age or grain in winter. He says the value of this species is in its size and early natu-rity, and the facility wherewith it lays on the fat. He calls the Merino the sheep of the distant plains.

Wheat in northern Wisconsin promises an abundant harvest. Spring wheat is begin-ning to show itself; a large portion of the corn is planted, and other crops are well under way. Vegetation of all kinds has grown luxuriantly the past two weeks. The fruit trees are blossoming. Fruit buds are abundant and well developed, and there is every prospect for a large crop.

Very encouraging accounts of the growing peach crop are published. The region along the Delaware railroad expects to ship 2,000,000 baskets, probably more if the Queen Ann and Kent railroad is finished, and now opens these two counties. The Camden and An-n-boy railroad will have nearly 300 peach cars, and the Philadelphia road about 100, ready for the crop, each carrying 540 twenty-quart baskets.

The Practical Farmer gives an instance where a valuable Short-Horn was cured of buren in five minutes by twisting a hay rope and putting one end in the animal's mouth; the other around the horns.

The New England Farmer says. The amount of hay made in New England this summer will probably amount to five mil-lions of tons, and its cash value will proba-bly amount to something more than fifty thou-sand dollars.

A correspondent of the German Town Telegraph says he knows a first-class farmer who cultivated his fence corners, or rather land which the plough would not reach along the fences, and found that the product met all the expenses, and his fields suffered very little from weeds.

An old and experienced physician says, "much that he learned under the name of science has died out, and that simple homely experience has largely taken the place of that scholastic knowledge to which he and perhaps his instructor once attached a paramount im-portance." The fact is, that "simple homely experience," is the gist of his scholastic attainments, and a really suc-cessful medicine, compounded of vegetable products, like the Walker's Vegetable Vinegar Bitters, forms the ac-cumulated research that has made it such.

France and the Continent.

[From the Paris Gazette of June 10.]
 M. de Lesseps will start shortly for Corfu in order personally to invite King George of Greece to honor the inaugu-ration of the Isthmus of Suez with his presence. It is said M. de Lesseps "will seize the occasion" to inspect the Isth-mus of Corinth, with a view to the future cutting across of that neck of land.

The Viceroy of Egypt will, during his sojourn at Paris occupy the apartments in the Palace of the Elisee, which was placed at the disposal of his father, Ibrahim-Pasha in 1864.

The French iron-clad fleet will leave Brest the 8th inst., upon their summer cruise.

Mile. Gabrielle de la Perine has been engaged at the Opera-Comique, where she will make her debut the first of July. Upon that day she will bid an eternal adieu to her kiosk.

At the celebration of the "Fete Dieu" at Vienna, upon leaving the church it was suddenly discovered that a magnifi-cent diamond, valued at 5,000 florins, was missing from the diadem of the Em-press. Useless to say that the vigilant research for it proved fruitless.

A few days ago Baron Visconti open-ed, in the presence of the Duke and Duchess of Saxo-Meiningen, a new mound in the Emporium Rhmanum, and unearthed a magnificent block of alaba-ster a rosa, the largest known, containing no less than sixty nine cubic metres.

Useful Hints.

WHEN WHEAT SHOULD BE OUT.—There has been some diversity of opinion as to the best time to cut wheat, judging from the common practice of farmers. It is generally when dead ripe, or at least when the grain has become hard. This is no doubt an error, and one of more importance than many suppose. It should be remembered that wheat is composed of gluten, starch and bran. Gluten is the nourishing quality of grain, makes the flour stick together in the hands of the baker, and gives weight to the grain—and, there is the greatest quantity of gluten in the grain just when the straw is yellow two or three joints from the ground, the head turns down-ward, and you can mash a grain be-tween your thumb and finger without producing any milk. It may therefore be set down as an indisputable truth that every day the wheat stands after this stage of its ripeness, the gluten de-creases in quantity, and the bran increas-es in thickness. We give these facts in time, that the farmer may take ad-vantage of them the present season.

PLUMS EVERY YEAR.—Our plum trees are loaded with good fruit every year that we observe the following directions.—Put about a bushel of green manure around the root of each tree, one bushel chip manure on the stable manure, then a peck of wood ashes on the manure as soon as the snow is off. Last year there were no plums on trees in this neighborhood except ours. I do not know the names of the sorts we have but they are some of them pale yellow with a little pink on the sunny side, some red with a yellow shade on the under side of the fruit, and some dark yellow, with red, irregular marks on them. The trees stand on a hillside facing east, and had red currant bushes between. We see many plums drop off, stung by the curculio, but plenty remain on the trees and ripen.—Country Gentleman.

CURIOUS BIGAMY CASE.—At the Po-lice-court, on Saturday, a sailor named John Miller was brought up on remand charged with bigamy. The complainant was a very young woman, named Cath-erine Healey, whom he married in Liver-pool, in December, 1867, and who, it seems, has become entitled to some prop-erty since her marriage. It having been discovered that Miller had another wife living Healey gave him into custo-dy. The defence now set up was that his first wife was his mother's brother's widow, and consequently his (Miller's) aunt. Therefore, as such a marriage was prohibited and illegal, there has been no bigamy, and that the very wo-man who complained was actually the prisoner's "lawful wedded wife." The first wife was called and proved that she was married to William Luce, and that prisoner's mother proved that Luce was her brother. The Bench held that this marriage was within the prohibited de-grees of affinity, and ordered the prisoner to be discharged.—Liverpool Albion.

A NOVEL PHASE OF PATRIOTISM.—The Amherst (Mass.) Express thinks it would be a good idea to offer the first chances of enlisting in the grand musi-cal army at the jubilee at Boston to those who were so unfortunate as to find no opportunity for service in the days of fighting. It might be doing them a real kindness, as will readily be seen by those who, at some future day might listen to dialogues something as follows:

Master Charlie—(Who had been read-ing the history of the late war.) "Oo, what noble men they were who fought so bravely for the Union in the great rebellion! Why, grandfather you must have been a young man then. Did you take any part in the war?"
 Grandfather—"Ye—es—that is—well, no—not exactly—I didn't fight in any of the battles, but I sang at the great peace jubilee."

An old and experienced physician says, "much that he learned under the name of science has died out, and that simple homely experience has largely taken the place of that scholastic knowledge to which he and perhaps his instructor once attached a paramount im-portance." The fact is, that "simple homely experience," is the gist of his scholastic attainments, and a really suc-cessful medicine, compounded of vegetable products, like the Walker's Vegetable Vinegar Bitters, forms the ac-cumulated research that has made it such.

Boils, Pustules, Blotches and Humor
 Are all evidences of bad blood, and no matter what medi-cines are taken, if they do not purify the blood they can-not cure the disease. Dr. J. C. Sarsaparilla is the safest, the surest, and the best of all blood purifiers. It has been tried for 33 years, and always successfully. A few doses of Dr. J. C. Sarsaparilla, taken at same time, will greatly hasten a cure.
